

Day 1 – Tuesday 7 September (virtual)

Panel I (10.00 – 11.30 CET)

Andre Dao (Melbourne Law School)

Co-producing a global data commons: how Big Data imagines human rights

Oana Ichim (Graduate Institute)

Engineering Legal Expertise: The politics of lost meanings

Mariela Eletti de Amstalden & Burkhard Schafer (Edinburgh Law School)

From Leibniz Characteristica Universalis to Google Translate: Machine translation as challenge and opportunity for International Law

Commentator – Fleur Johns (UNSW) (tbc)

Panel II (12.00 – 13.30 CET)

Kristina Irion (University of Amsterdam)

Algorithms Without Borders: The Rise and Demise of International Economic Law as Meta-Regulation of the Global Algorithmic Society

Connor Hounslow (UCL)

AI and Epistemic Jurisdiction in Private International Law

Jennifer Tridgell (OHCHR / ILA)

Coding for Change or Change to Coding? The Relationship Between Algorithmic Bias and International Human Rights Law

Commentator – Abhivardhan (Indian Society of Artificial Intelligence and Law)

Panel III (14.30 – 16.00 CET)

Elisabeth Hoffberger-Pippan (SWP Berlin)

Rethinking Norms in Times of Algorithmic Decision Making – A Kantian Approach

Ingvild Bode (University of Southern Denmark)

'Meaningful' human control: How non-verbal practices shape use of force norms

Abhimanyu George Jain (Graduate Institute)

LAWS in international law

Commentator – Rebecca Mignot-Mahdavi (T.M.C. Asser Institute)

Panel IV (16.30 – 18.00 CET)

Thomas Streinz (NYU School of Law)

The Digital Recalibration of International Law: Granularity, Flexibility, and Automation

Sarah Nelson (Vanderbilt University)

Information Rights and Legal Wrongs: the Non-Aligned Movement, American Legal Activism, and the Problem of Sovereignty in the Early Internet Age

Katie Szilagyi (University of Ottawa) & Jon Khan (Osgoode Hall Law School)

There Might Come Soft Rains: Technological Determinism, International Law, and the Age of Intelligent Machines

Deval Desai (Edinburgh Law School), Florian Hoffmann (PUC-Rio), Anna Leander (Graduate Institute)

Infrastructuring of Democracy in the Global South: Facebook's Algorithm and Marco Civil's Regulatory Mission in Brazil

Commentators – Roxana Vatanparast (Harvard STS) and

Dimitri Van Den Meerssche (Edinburgh Law School)